

CAREER PATHWAYS FOR NATIVE AMERICANS IN STATE SERVICE

Tuesday, November 29, 2022
10 a.m.-11:30 a.m.

California Native Americans are the original stewards of the lands that now constitute California and continue to make essential and unique contributions to our state.

This panel will highlight the importance of the contributions of California Native American people in state service and help inspire and grow the number of Native Americans who work for the State of California. The focus will be on connecting with high school and college-age Native Americans and sharing resources and knowledge needed to plan for and achieve meaningful state careers to support themselves, their communities and their ancestral lands. Topics will include the benefits of and how to apply for state service, and recruitment and outreach.

After the panel, participants can visit the California Natural Resources Agency's Poppy Pavilion Career Center for more information.
